Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 01 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Noticeably colder today for most places, compared to Wednesday.

Today:
Mostly cloudy start but turning brighter with bright or sunny spells developing across the region. Feeling noticeably cooler for most places, but especially across Kent with a brisk wind off the North Sea. Highest temperatures across Hampshire. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Tonight:
Patchy cloud will arrive, mainly across eastern areas, while western areas remain largely clear. Breezy along the coast, light winds elsewhere and becoming chilly in rural locations. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Friday:
Patchy cloud, particularly for eastern areas, but also sunny periods, with the greatest sunshine and highest temperatures in the west. Breezy, especially for the Kent coast, feeling cold here. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Saturday varying, often large amounts of, cloud and sunny spells. Sunday early frost, then largely sunny and locally rather warm. Monday much colder, and windy with chance of wintry showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.